THE WHITE STRIPE

"Why won't anyone play with me?" asked Sheila fearfully. "Why do you say that, Norman?"

"Because you're a skunk, that's why!" roared Norman, the big old skunk who was Sheila's cousin. "And as soon as folks see us, as soon as they get a look at those big white stripes down our backs, they run away! You'll find out!" he added nastily, and marched off.

Poor little Sheila was left alone . . . and terribly upset. All she could think of was getting rid of the stripe on her back . . . and fast! Near tears, she ran to the river bank and started scooping up the thick black mud just as fast as she could. Then, carefully, she smoothed the mud over her back until the white stripe was completely covered. Now she was all black! The tell-tale streak of white was gone!

Sighing with relief, the little skunk hurried back to the forest. Now, if she could only find a playmate—! But alas, no sooner had she reached a clearing where the sun shone through, then the mud on her back started to dry and crack . . . and fall off! Dried mud has no sticking power, and in a few short minutes, her stripe was exposed again for all the world to see!

Frantic with fear now, Sheila wracked her brain for a solution to the problem. And suddenly, she had an inspiration! If she couldn't be all black, she'd be all white! And that way, the stripe wouldn't be seen either . . . not if she were white all over! She remembered seeing a big bucket of whitewash that some hunter had left standing outside his cabin at the edge of the forest, and it was there she headed now.

No one was around when she reached the cabin, and so she dived head first into the bucket, splashing around in the whitewash till she was completely covered with it. And when at last she climbed out, she was snow white from the tip of her nose to the tip of her tail!

Humming with joy, Sheila skipped back into the forest, sure that now at last her secret was safe. But suddenly, with a clap of thunder, the heavens opened up, and the rain came pouring down! It was a typical summer storm . . . and in three seconds flat, it washed away every last bit of whitewash from Sheila's body! Dazed and heart-broken, the little skunk just stood there, frozen in her tracks.

Then . . . "Hey! Psst! Come on in out of the rain!" called a gay young voice. And Sheila turned to find Penelope Possum beckoning to her from inside a hollow tree trunk.

Hardly daring to believe it was true, Sheila crawled in beside Penelope. "You mean you don't mind my stripe?" she whispered timidly.

"Your stripe?" echoed Penelope. "Who cares about that? I want to get to know you. Otherwise, how can we be friends?"

"Then Cousin Norman was wrong!" cried Sheila joyfully. "It's not what you look like but what you are that counts! Oh, we will be friends, Penelope . . . great friends! You'll see!"

CASPER, THE FRIENDLY GHOST

THE BIGGER BOOB

"I'm not going to take it any longer," Pvt. Seymour Boob told his sidekick, Louie. "I've been picked on long enough, and now it's my turn to get smart!"

"Gee," said Louie, who was the only GI in camp who did more k.p. than Seymour Boob. "Are you really going to talk back?"

"Of course I am. I'm tired of having work tossed on my back. I'm going to kick, see. Really kick!" Seymour Boob was even surprising himself. He was almost scaring himself.

"Now you stay here, Louie," he said to his friend. "I don't want you to get hurt. I'm going to go back to the barracks and just take it easy! And I'd like to see someone stop me!"

Louie nodded his head. He was too surprised and proud of Seymour to say a word.

"Gee," Louie mumbled to himself. "I wonder what's going to happen."

Louie didn't wait too long to find out. He took a short walk around the Army grounds, and then slowly tip-toed to the back of the barracks. He pressed his ear up close to the window. What he heard struck him like a bolt of lightning.

Seymour Boob was talking . . .

"Now, listen here, you guys. I've taken enough of your lip! I'm filled up to here, see. Up to here! Now it's my turn to do the talking — and the acting!"

Louie was afraid to look in. He was proud of Seymour, all right, but he was too frightened for himself. He just kept quiet and listened.

"So you're going to take this, Mac Wilson!" He heard a BLAMM! "And this, Timmy!" This time there was a BANG! "And this, Joe!" BIFF! "And I want all of you to leave my pal, Louie, alone! 'Cause if I hear about any of you picking on him, it's going to be the end!"

Louie had heard enough. Boy, that Seymour Boob was a great guy. Louie took off in a flash. He never felt better in his life. He had the toughest guy in camp behind him now, and he would finally come into his own.

No more than a half-hour later, Louie decided to put his new-found power to the test. He bumped into Mac Wilson, one of the fellows that Seymour had warned.

"Hello, Mac," smiled Louie, poking him in the stomach.

"Huh?" was Mac's reaction.

"Guess you learned your lesson," said Louie, pulling at his chin.

BIFF! BAMMM! BANGGG!

That was the sound of Mac's fists on poor Louie.

"The guy must be cracked," said Mac Wilson as he walked away.

Seymour Boob came walking by soon after that. His friend was still lying on the ground.

"Louie, what happened?"

"That's what I'd like to know. Wasn't that Mac Wilson you were talking to in the barracks? And the guy still has guts enough to hit me?!"

Seymour helped pick up his pal. "Gee, Louie," he said. "I was only practicing . . . talking to myself. And by the looks of the result, I-I think I'd better change my plans!"

Oh, boy! A Cadet Speedometer for Christmas!

Get a bike speedometer for Christmas, and have fun all year! Just pick out the model you want, and tell Mom and Dad about it.

The CADET is the world's most famous bike speedometer. Shows speeds up to 50 miles per hour, distances to 10,000 miles. The Cadet fits any bike and makes bike riding twice as much fun.

The CADETTE "20" is perfect for bikes with 20" wheels—including those popular "hi-rise handlebar" models.

SPEEDO DELUXE is a sleek, jet-styled speedometer for all racing and touring bikes (26" or larger wheels). It's the sharpest speedometer you ever saw.

And all three models are shockproof and weatherproof. They come as complete kits. Easy to put on your bike in just a few minutes.

You can find Cadet, Cadette "20", and Speedo Deluxe at any good bike, hardware, or department store.
